To the Carrier Boys

Success to you boys as you journey along, Ye men of the future; and know The making of life's weal or woe.

Be true to yourselves, to your country and God. Be brave, be faithful and pure, And the temple of character builded with In its beauty shall ever endure.

Carrier's Address-1906

Good morning, Happy New Year! How goes the world today; Are your skies with sunlight golden, Or are they sadly gray?

Perhaps it is your're thinking That Fate is all unjust; Look up, not down, my brother;

Across the tossing billows And o'er the darkening land, We see Hope's star eternal, We see her beck'ning hand.

But if from smiling Fortune Your ships full freighted come, Be generous with your blessings-Give your needy brother some.

Words of cheer are never costly, And a hand clasp firm and true May give more of strength and courage Than a miser's gold could do.

Life was never meant for walking, Just along in simple file; Laugh and chat a little while.

What tho' sombre clouds are lying

Where the crested billows battle, Where the dark wing'd storm may sweep, Calm shall still the waves and mirrored Stars their shining vigils keep.

Not for self and for self's pleasing Live we in this world of ours; Not for all of sunny weather, Nor for pathways full of flowers.

Make them better if we can, but-Dare the bravest thing to do. Let our hearts give of their loving, Let our souls give of their cheer;

With a courage strong and true,

Looking up, toward the mountains With a soul thrilled and elate, Grasp the powers Divinely given, Be the conquerors of Fate!
